Giving Compass' Take:

- Seneo Mwamba and Khanyi Mlaba share facts that everyday consumers need to know about why the end of plastic use is so vital.
- How can you tackle plastic in your community and beyond?
- Learn why reducing plastic pollution isn't enough to save the ocean.

It's no secret that plastic is terrible for the environment, we hear about it all the time and it has been reiterated over and over again by policy makers, scientists and the likes of David Attenborough.

But do you know just how bad the plastic pollution problem is?

According to the UN Environment Programme (UNEP), 300 million tonnes of plastic is produced every year, and not all of it is recycled. To put that into perspective, that's equivalent to the weight of the entire human population.

It is also up to us as consumers to understand the impact that our plastic consumption is having on the environment. Get clued up with these lesser-known facts about plastic that you really need to know.

1. Only 9% of all plastic produced is recycled
2. A whopping 2 million plastic bags are used every minute worldwide
3. Single-use plastics are illegal in some parts of the world
4. Every minute of every day a truckload of plastic is dumped into the ocean
5. 73% of beach litter worldwide is plastic
6. One million plastic bottles are bought every minute

What is Silk –

Man is always inquisitive for silk products. SILK - The Queen of Textiles, spells luxury, elegance, class and comfort. Mankind has always loved this shimmering fiber of unparalleled grandeur from the moment Chinese Empress ShilingTi discovered it in her tea cup. It withstood many a daunting challenges from other natural and artificial fibers and yet, remained the undisputed Queen of Textiles since centuries. Exquisite qualities like the natural sheen, inherent affinity for dyes and vibrant colors, high absorbance, light weight, resilience and excellent drape etc. have made silk, the irresistible and inevitable companion of the eve, all over the world. Chemically speaking, silk is made of proteins secreted in the fluid state by a caterpillar, popularly known as 'silkworm'. These silkworms feed on the selected food plants and spin cocoons as a 'protective shell' to perpetuate the life. Silkworm has four stages in its life cycle viz., egg, caterpillar, pupa and moth. Man interferes this life cycle at the cocoon stage to obtain the silk, a continuous filament of commercial importance, used in weaving of the dream fabric.

Xeldem is a village in Quepem Taluka in the state of Goa. This village has been facing multiple hazards in the form of water-logged roads, landslides, soil erosion and poor water quality issues because of the inadequate and poor drainage system to drain out the storm water. Many a times drains are constructed in an incorrect way because of negligible understanding about the need of safe drainage of both surface and sub-surface flow, hence there is a requirement of holistic planning and concept of total design is necessary for design of a sustainable drainage system.

We selected ward no.3 which is named Davodxet-Taki as our critical area as it is a mountainous region having little to no drainage Fig No.1. Critical Area of Drain (i) infrastructure hence during the peak monsoon seasons, storm water rushes and seeps down the mountain slope water-logging the road in turn flooding it.

This disrupts the life of the local residents as it blocks the route preventing them from carrying out their daily chores, it is also a commercial route frequented by many heavy vehicles.

SOCIO-ECONOMIC SURVEY OF THE VILLAGE/HABITATION:

For the social -Economic survey we are collect the data using prescribed formatting the students of government degree college Seethanagaram adhikavi nannaya university. Went to the Rajupalam village for social Economic survey in the part of COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT Our main mottam of this survey is to know about the Villagers living social and Economic conditioner In this process we are selected some topic and doing survey on that topic. we have 10 questionnaires on the topic

In the part of social-Economic survey I conduct a survey on the topic “WATER FACILITIES AND DRINKING WATER AVAILABILITY “ AND I went to some villagers home and ask about their life Styles, routine work professions source of income ,health issue drinking water facilities, water source composition of facilities etc.,

It has been observed that the many people have government tap connection .maximum no of people was stay in pucca semi pucca and hurts

The chief economy of the village is devendar on the agriculture hence people have been found engaged with farming and farming related works

80%of people are uses govt tap connection water and 20%of people use RO water bairraju water.

Some drainage problems can result in erosion areas in your yard where excessive downspout water emerges from daylights or pipe openings. One way to fix this is by installing a dry creek bed to carry the water off. These are often ornamental in design and can add an attractive landscape feature to your yard. "To create a real natural look," Lesti says, "we use river slicks and big boulders and they work like a charm." The cost will probably be higher than installing a catch basin but to move excess water off your yard, it is best to have it flow across the surface in this natural manner instead of underneath the soil where clogging problems could occur. "A lot of times silt will start washing in and collect in the rocks," Lesti states. "We put a rubber liner down first and put the rocks on top. It acts like a water slide for the water to flow down through there."

Problem #5: Soggy Trouble Spots

Soggy areas in your yard that never seem to dry out could be caused by a number of issues. You may have underground springs or creeks that have fractured and are emerging in your lawn. The problem spot could also be caused by a large depression in your landscape where all the water is draining. Or it could be due to an improper pitch or slope in the ground.

One solution to bog conditions in your yard is to install a rain garden in that location. "It's a great way to keep water on the property instead of just sending everything straight to the curb and into creeks," Brooks notes. "An ideal rain garden is an area that has been excavated out and what's put back in that excavation is either an engineered soil or a gravel soil mix of some sort that will allow the water to be slowly absorbed into the soil surrounding it." These can be visually striking green areas when you fill them with water loving plants such as ferns and hostas. If your soggy area is in full sun, you might consider filling it with colorful perennials which could help solve the problem and add some pleasing landscape accents to your yard.

Problem #6: Impacted Soil Conditions

Often drainage problems can develop at new homes where the soil has been severely impacted by builders or when you install something new in your yard such as a swimming pool. Occasionally
